McLean goes to Babine East, while James Latham will cover the Hazelton district and W. J. Goodwin the Terrace section.

New methods of taking spring salmon are reported by Mr Norrie, who says the fishermen are now trolling with spoons and making good catches. They are receiving an average price of eight cents a pound, and as their equipment is less expensive than when nets are used, they are doing well. The sockeye season opens on June 20, but there is reason to fear that the run will be diminished again this summer, as has been the case for some years past. Mr. Norrie expresses the opinion that measures for the conservation of salmon will be necessary to prevent depletion.

SOLDIERS LEARNING TO FARM

While Private Citizen Smith and Private Citizen Brown are discussing and wondering "whether the returned soldier will go in for farming," Private Soldier Smith and Private Soldier Brown are—doing it.

Not till the able-bodied men return can we tell what number of soldiers is likely to take up land and farm it. The chances are that it will be large, if the men are convinced that the schemes for helping them will be so developed and worked as to offer a clear hope of success.

A census is now being taken among Canadian soldiers overseas and on this it should be possible to base an estimate of the number agriculturally inclined. The card issued for the purpose by the National Service Commission includes spaces to be filled up with each man's name, age, unit and rank, regimental number, P. O. address before enlisting, and province. Each soldier is then asked the following questions:

"Which are you, married, single, or widower?"

"Name and address of last employer before you enlisted?"

"How many dependents have you? State relationship, sex and age of each."

"What were you working at?"

"Have you any trade or profession? If so, what?"

"Is your old position open for you on your return to Canada in fit condition?"

"Do you wish to take your discharge in Great Britain?"

"Do you propose to make your home in Canada after the war?"

"Do you wish to take up farming as an occupation?"

"Have you ever worked on a farm? If so, how long?"

"How much money do you expect to have at your disposal on your return to Canada?"

"Do you desire to take advantage of any available scheme of assisted agricultural settlement?"

"If so, what province do you desire to settle in?"

"And would you, if necessary to gain experience, work for prevailing wages on a farm on your return, providing your dependents were in the meanwhile given the same support as they now receive?"

Meanwhile, the men already back among us are those who have been invalidated home. Men recovering from an illness, or disabled seriously enough to prevent their return to the firing line, do not at first feel like taking up the strenuous life of a farm.

Nevertheless, the vanguard of the military farming force is already on the spot.

Today, the records of the Military Hospitals Commission show 75 men have had their applications granted for agricultural training, besides those passed by the Disabled Soldiers Training Boards and awaiting the Commission's approval. Of these 75 as many as 37 are in Alberta, 22 in Saskatchewan, 14 in Manitoba and the other two in British Columbia. A considerable proportion are specializing in farm mechanics.

The training board, it may be explained, consists of a vocational officer, a medical officer, and a third member, generally representing the provincial commission established to help returned soldiers find employment. When a man is found unable, owing to any effect of his service, to take up his former occupation, he may claim the privileges of the government's re-education scheme. That is, he is entitled to receive free training for a new occupation, along with free maintenance for himself and his family while the training lasts and for a month longer.

The number of returned men who have gone out on the land independently is unknown, but is probably large.

To provide for the increasing number of returned soldiers who desire an agricultural training, the government of Alberta has arranged to keep one of the provincial schools of agriculture in operation throughout the year. In the ordinary course these schools are closed from April 1 to November 1.

The school chosen is situated at Olds, 58 miles north of Calgary, on the Edmonton line. There the men will receive twelve months' instruction, with the object of taking it either continuously for a summer and a winter, or in two winter courses separated by an interval which they can spend on a farm.

The great re-education center for Ontario at Guelph, just taken over as a going concern by the Military Hospitals Commission from the provincial government, is fully equipped for the most thorough agricultural training. The property covers 850 acres, nearly all available for this use, and a great proportion of it already under cultivation. There is a large greenhouse, for gardening under glass; a model dairy barn; up-to-date machinery; and live-stock of all kinds complete the equipment for animal husbandry.

Preserving Vegetables

We have become so accustomed to using vegetables from cans (or fresh) that we do not realize that they can be successfully preserved in palatable forms by other methods.

Professor Cruess, of the University of California, says that the scarcity of tin cans and glass jars makes it imperative that these other methods be used this season if any great quantity of vegetables is to be kept for use next winter. He describes several methods, which, while not new, and probably not generally known, are simple, cheap and effective, whether applied on a small or large scale.

Drying is the most common method of keeping vegetables, aside from canning.

All root vegetables, such as potatoes, carrots, turnips, beets, etc., can be dried successfully by exposing them on trays to the sun. The vegetables should first be washed, peeled if necessary, cut into pieces about one-fourth of an inch thick, spread on trays or sheets of paper, and exposed to the sun until dry. Potatoes, carrots, turnips and beets will dry in this way in two to four days. Onions require longer.

Dried vegetables must be kept in covered crocks or tight boxes or heavy sacks, to prevent insect injury. Before using for cooking the dried vegetables must be soaked in water about 24 hours. They may then be cooked and served in ways similar to those used for fresh vegetables. By proper seasoning and preparation dried vegetables can be made into palatable dishes. Their nutritive value is not perceptibly changed by drying.

Vegetables can also be preserved by the use of salt.

Wash, peel and cut the vegetables into pieces one-fourth of an inch thick. Weigh them. Weigh out one pound of salt to each three pounds of vegetables. Place a thin layer of salt in the bottom of a crock or barrel or wooden bucket in which the vegetables are to be stored. Then build the vegetables and salt up in alternate layers until the container is half full. Cover the vegetables with a layer of salt. Place a piece of wood on top of the vegetables and a heavy weight on the piece of wood. In 24 hours the vegetables will be found covered with a heavy brine formed by the salt and the juice from the vegetables. The vegetables will have greatly increased in bulk. More sliced vegetables and salt in the ratio of one pound of salt to three pounds of vegetables may be added to fill the jar or barrel and pressure applied again. Keep the vegetables immersed in this brine by means of a light wood weight until they are to be used. If they show signs of spoiling add more salt. Before cooking, soak out the excess salt as is done with salt fish, or parboil a short time for the same purpose. Do not use metal containers for storage of vegetables, because metal will dissolve in brine. Use crocks, barrels or wooden containers.

THE MINER WAR BULLETINS

MONDAY, MAY 28

London: General Cadorna's brilliant offensive against the Austrians continues, with the Italian line projecting further down the Carso plateau towards Trieste. Prisoners captured by the Italians since May 14 now total 22,419.

The Austrians have been pushed further back in the Plava sector. Elsewhere the Italians have repelled counter-attacks and retain all ground gained.

The French announce further progress on the Champagne front and the repulse of two German counter-attacks against French salients east and west of Cerny.

German artillery is displaying increased activity against the British front in the sector of Arras from the Scarpe south to Croisilles.

Russian troops frustrated a Turkish attempt to dislodge them from the heights south of Van, on the Caucasus front.

Sixteen German air raiders showered bombs on the southeast coast of England. Seventy-six persons were killed and 174 injured. The victims were mostly women and children. Three enemy airplanes were brought down.

Germany announces that she will not respect the Red Cross flag, but will regard hospital ships as war vessels. The transportation of sick from Kalamata (southern Greece) to Gibraltar may be allowed safe passage only if the name of the vessel, speed and time of departure is notified six weeks in advance.

Petrograd: Strikes in all branches of industry throughout Finland are reported.

During the last few days German aircraft have dropped bombs on towns in the Danube region, inflicting many casualties.

Paris: An American corps including 150 doctors and 75 nurses received a warm welcome.

A French deputy, criticising the marine department, says German U-boats obtain oil in Spanish waters.

Seattle: Fourteen German submarines and three Austrian warships have been sunk in the Mediterranean by Japanese warships.

TUESDAY, MAY 29

Rome: Austria is massing every man of her reserves for the last desperate defence of Trieste. Meanwhile her troops on the left wing are gradually giving way before the irresistible Italian advance. Estimates from the front put Austrian losses since May 14th at sixty thousand men. The enemy is fighting bravely under the decimating fire and terrific smashes of the Italian infantrymen. According to word from the Carso, all the Austrian reserves are being concentrated close to Trieste, and the civil evacuation of the city has been ordered. All supplies are being hurriedly transported to inland cities.

London: German night attacks northwest of Cherisy and south of Lens were repulsed, the enemy suffering severe losses. The Germans may soon be forced to retire to the Meuse.

The French forces have been conducting victorious operations around Craonne for a week, a wedge being driven into the German lines. All observation points dominating the Ailette valley were taken. The French have advanced to Corberry. The enemy is making desperate but unsuccessful attempts to stem the advance.

Belgians are being slain like animals, a veritable reign of terror being caused by German secret police. One thousand are condemned each month and the people are murdered on slightest pretext.

Paris: A German raid with blazing fire sprays was repulsed at Mont Blond. Other attacks at Mont Casque and Teton were repulsed.

Petrograd: The shell supply is plentiful. Russia's need is food and renewed activity on the part of her armies and people.

Washington: Large forces of Japanese may be sent to the Russian front as the next move in the war.

New York: Prince Udine, head of the Italian mission, says Italy will have no part in separate peace plots.

London: Nine Swedish and two Spanish steamers have been sunk by U-boats.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 30

London: There is no news today from the western fronts.

Prospects for settlement of the home rule issue are growing brighter. T. P. O'Connor takes a hopeful view of the coming Irish conference. The recent debate in parliament cleared the air, the situation being saved by Sir Edward Carson's friendly utterances.

Unemployed senior officers of the Canadians must revert to the rank of lieutenant or return to the Dominion.

The hospital ship Dover Castle was torpedoed in the Mediterranean on Sunday. Six persons are believed to have perished.

Germans are losing interest in the submarine campaign. Reports on the U-boat operations show a falling-off in results.

Rome: Italian troops continuing their drive in the Plava sector, forced a group of Austrians into a small valley east of Gorizia, capturing one hundred.

Duino, the key to the city of Trieste, is now half surrounded by Cadorna's forces. Fighting of great violence continues, the Austrians being compelled to fall back before our relentless advance.

Petrograd: Kerensky is preparing Russia for action. The new minister of war is staking all on his ability to reorganize the army as a fighting force, and it is believed he will yet be successful.

Berlin: An attack by Russian and Roumanian forces is expected soon by German commanders.

Athens: One hundred and two Greek vessels, of a total tonnage of 300,000, have been torpedoed by the Germans. Only 149 vessels of Greek registry remain.

Washington: A campaign by German propagandists to align the republics of South and Central America against the U.S. was exposed by the state department. In Argentina, Venezuela and Colombia the propaganda is assuming menacing proportions, Argentina especially having become a hotbed of pro-German and anti-American intrigue.

Germans have been attempting to embroil the U. S. with the Allies by violations against foreign trading regulations. Lansing has asked for a restrictive act to curb alien enemies.

Ottawa: The conscription bill will be introduced on Thursday or Friday. Feeling against the measure grows in Quebec, many opposition meetings being held.

Blondin says if both parties agree on compulsion, there will be little trouble in enforcing it in the province of Quebec.

THURSDAY, MAY 31

Rome: General Cadorna has shifted the impact of his drive against Austria to a point north of Gorizia. Striking at a new salient in the enemy front, the Italians captured a tremendously strong position, which they are holding against all attacks. The lines have been extended west of Medezza. Furious fighting continues. The Italians are bringing up heavy artillery for a renewal of the assault along the coast line immediately threatening Duino and Trieste.

London: British raiders penetrated into German trenches south of Neuve Chapelle and inflicted casualties. In the neighborhood of Croisilles and west of Lens hostile raiders were repulsed. No major fighting is reported.

Paris: There has been a resumption of fighting, with fairly heavy mass engagements over many sectors of the French front. German assaults in Champagne were repulsed.

Continued success attends the French drive around Verdun.

South of St. Quentin there is violent artillery fighting.

Citizens of Allied nations living in France will be conscripted.

Syria, Greece: Former Premier Venizelos proclaims Constantine a traitor, saying there can be no reconciliation with the monarch. The present dynasty must be overthrown and the king turned bag and baggage out of Greece.

Washington: Hun plotters are causing worry, and U.S. officials are adopting drastic measures to squelch the anti-conscription propaganda.

New York: Austria apparently is in the grip of a peaceful revolution, the result of which may be as far-reaching as that of Russia. The pillars of the old system of dual monarchy are crumbling away, Tisza having already fallen. The emperor hopes to save his crown by smoothing the path of democracy.

A Russian mission of forty is on its way to the United States.

FRIDAY, JUNE 1

London: Field-Marshal Haig reports the resumption of fairly heavy artillery firing on both sides. South of Armentieres a hostile raiding party was driven off, leaving a few prisoners in our hands. There is considerable big gun activity in the neighborhood of Bullecourt and to the right of the Scarpe.

The weekly return shows eighteen British vessels of more than 1600 tons sunk by U-boats.

Both Britain and Germany

celebrated the anniversary of the Jutland battle.

Paris: The Austrians are evacuating Trieste, the archives being sent to Vienna, while the banks have removed to Laibach. The enemy defences barring the advance of the Italians are rapidly crumbling, despite the 2000 big guns of the Austrians. Prisoners declare that the Austrians have ceased drawing men from the Russian front since Kerensky made the journey thither. An offensive by Brusiloff is expected.

Petrograd: Skobeloff, Socialist minister of labor, says Russians are walking on the edge of a knife across an abyss. The gravity of the situation is emphasized by all leaders. The food supply is short and the state of the country is confessedly bad. The tide of opinion is turning in favor of discipline. Kerensky was welcomed by the army.
